PDF to JPG Converter is an application with a pretty suggestive name - it allows you to convert PDF documents to image files with the JPG format. The interface of the program is based on a standard window in which you can import documents by using either the file browser or "drag and drop" method. Batch processing is allowed. So, all you have to do is specify the output destination, in order to proceed with the conversion task. But you can also adjust the quality and resolution, as well as set the colors and rotation. In addition, you can specify the image name template and set the page range, as well as set the post-task action (e.g. delete original PDF document, move converted PDF files to a specific folder), and more. The simple-to-use program takes up a very low amount of system resources (which is barely noticeable), quickly finishes a task and manages to keep a very good image quality. Unfortunately, the unregistered version displays a watermark on the output files. Also, the interface is outdated and there is no help file available. But, even so, we strongly recommend PDF to JPG Converter to all users, no matter how inexperienced they are. When he reached the ground he saw the Porsche parked and there was a black Suburban pulled up to the side of it. A figure entered and removed the Porsche's license plate. He looked up and saw Rusty, who was waving him over. When Rusty saw Blue he waved both. Blue ran towards him, shouting, "Rusty" as he went. He got closer and saw Rusty's leg lying on the ground. "Rusty!" He jumped into the hole and saw a gun sticking out from his back. "Rusty, what happened?" Rusty lay still, eyes closed and unmoving. Blue crawled to him, shaking his shoulder to see if he was awake. Rusty didn't react. Blue did a quick inventory of Rusty's injuries; severe leg laceration on the lower side, a wound on his leg bone probably from the fall, a big gash on the side of his face, and a large contusion in the side of his head. He removed the gun from Rusty's back and placed it on the ground. He then knelt beside him. Rusty made no move to respond, so Blue crawled back to the car. Now he was back, in the car, he looked around frantically for something to bind Rusty's wounds. He removed the small first-aid kit from the center console and ripped up the t-shirt he used to cover his wounds. He ripped that off along with the shirt Rusty was wearing, and used both to wrap his leg and his head. He bound the bleeding leg tightly, using both old and new t-shirts. Then he put the newer shirt back on, using his belt to hold it in place, and that last injury the chief had mentioned. He hoped it was nothing. Maybe just scrapes and bruises. He backed the car up and drove it to the edge of the forest, turning it around so the passenger side was down a little. He got
